MESSAGE

I am happy to learn that Bir Tikendrajit University, Manipur, established in 2020, is fulfilling the aspiration of the people of North Eastern region of India by making available more and more education opportunities for them.

The welfare, progress and prosperity of a country depends on the quality of its citizens, and this in turn is the outcome of the education they receive. The North East Region is a special part of the country where education, in every sense, is one of the fundamental factors of development. No country can achieve sustainable economic development without substantial investment in human capital.

Quality education is the gateway to opportunity and it raises people's productivity and creativity. It can empower the people to meet the challenges of a knowledge based society in the 21st Century. It prepares them to contribute constructively not only towards nation building, but also in the larger process of global development.

Universities have a major responsibility in nation building through the training of young people in various disciplines and by providing value-based education to make them responsible citizens. Educational institutions to be relevant, must take into account the national scenario and global developments to structure a curriculum that caters to the opportunities and challenges that are likely to be faced by students.

The calibre of a University depends on the work of its Lectures and Professors. The faculty members are its lifeblood. Therefore, a young University, like any new institution, has the challenge of establishing itself well.

I am confident that Bir Tikendrajit University will build its reputation as an academic institution for excellence, that encourages high quality intellectual pursuits and broad based participation, and as an institution that produces leaders, thinkers, professionals and of course, good citizens.

I extend my greetings and felicitations to the Management and all those associated with Bir Tikendrajit University and wish them all success.

BLENDDED LEARNING CONCEPT AND APPROACH

Equal access to education is a critical need, one that is particularly important for those in our all communities. This can be quite easily achieved by a blended learning approach if implemented in a systematic manner. Implementing blended learning creates an environment where adaptability is inevitably necessary to succeed-for both teacher and student.

At BTU our hybrid learning model is flexible and efficient, with an extended reach across all the subjects and courses we offer. The approach uses both formats-instructor led and self-learning.

The present circumstances notwithstanding, the blended learning approach helps us to be inclusive as we connect with more students who want to undergo formal higher education.

In our online certification courses we offer subjects making the news - from new technology & sustainability to cultural diplomacy.

INTRODUCTION Humanities are academic disciplines that study aspects of human society and culture. In the renaissance, the term contrasted with divinity and referred to what is now called classics, the main area of secular study in universities at the time. Today the humanities are more frequently defined as any fields of study outside of professional training, mathematics & the natural & sometimes social sciences.

The humanities use methods that are primarily critical or speculative & have a significant historical element. As distinguished from the mainly empirical approaches of the natural sciences, unlike the sciences, it has no central discipline. The humanities include the study of ancient and modern languages, literature, philosophy, history, archaeology, anthropology, human geography, law, politics, religion & art.

INTRODUCTION - MBA The Master of Business Administration degree originated in the United States in the early 20th century when the country industrialized and companies sought scientific management. The core courses in an MBA program cover various areas of business administration such as accounting, applied statistics, human resources, business communication, business ethics, business law, business strategy, managerial economics, management, entrepreneurship, marketing, supply-chain management and operations management in a manner most relevant to management analysis & strategy. Most programs also include elective courses & concentrations for further study in a particular area for example, accounting, finance & marketing. MBA programs in the United States typically require completing about forty to sixty credits, much higher than the thirty credits typically required for degrees that cover some of the same material such as the Master of Economics, Master of Finance, Master of Accountancy, Master of Science in Marketing and Master of Science in Management.

BBA Business administration is the administration of a commercial enterprise. It includes all aspects of overseeing and supervising business operations. From the point of view of management and leadership, it also covers fields that include office building administration, accounting, finance, designing, development, quality assurance, data analysis, sales, project management, information-technology management, research and development and marketing. The administration of a business includes the performance or management of business operations and decision-making, as well as the efficient organization of people and other resources to direct activities towards common goals and objectives. In general, "administration" refers to the broader management function, including the associated finance, personnel & MIS services. Administration can refer to the bureaucratic/operational performance of routine office tasks, usually internally oriented and reactive rather than proactive. Administrators, broadly speaking, engage in a common set of functions to meet an organization's goals.
